June Workshop Artist Mary Whyte

CWA Workshop Committee is thrilled to have Mary Whyte as our workshop artist for June. Unfortunately, there is no meeting for June and her workshop on portraits and figures is FULL (and has been for a couple of months). A quick glance at her fabulous paintings will tell you why. Classically trained in oil and drawing, Mary is self-taught in watercolor, which makes her work all the more impressive. A bout with cancer in her 30's help Mary focus on what was important to her, and a magical vacation to Charleston, South Carolina, helped her and her husband decide to leave their life in Philadelphia and head south.

Mary is a teacher and author whose figurative paintings have earned national recognition. A resident of John's Island, South Carolina, Whyte garners much of her inspiration from the Gullah descendents of coastal Carolina slaves who number among her most prominent subjects. Her portraits are included in numerous corporate, private, and university collections, as well as in the permanent collections of South Carolina's Greenville County Museum of Art and the Gibbes Museum of Art in Charleston. Her paintings have been featured in International Artist, Artist, American Artist, Watercolor, and American Art Collector, L'Art de Aquarelle, and numerous other publications. Whyte is the author of Down Bohicket Road, Working South, Painting Portraits & Figures in Watercolor, Alfreda's World, as well as An Artist's Way of Seeing and Watercolor for the Serious Beginner. Her work can be found at Coleman Fine Art in Charleston, where her husband, Smith Coleman, makes gilded and hand-carved frames.

Art historian Martha Severens has recently worked with Mary to create a book highlighting Mary's history from Ohio, Pennsylvania, into Charleston, South Carolina. Her art chronicles the people from all over the South, people who often are in continued on page 2 vanishing lifestyles, like textile workers, a drive-in movie theater owner, and the black residents of John's Island.

Featured on a Carolina NPR radio program, Mary and Martha were interviewed on "Walter Edgar's Journal", in regards to their new book, More Than a Likeness, the Enduring Art of Mary Whyte. If you are interested in hearing this interview, it is available as a podcast at <http://tiny.cc/j0olgx>. This is a very interesting interview where Mary talks about her subjects, some of whom she has painted repeated over the years, and her artistic influences. Additionally, Mary has been featured on a CBS news segment, which talked about her work capturing images of a vanishing South. To see this video, follow this link <http://tiny.cc/a5olgx>.

Promoting the excellence in art education, the Mary Whyte Art Educator Award was established in 2007 to highlight a high school visual art teacher in the state of South Carolina who has demonstrated superior commitment to their students and to their craft. The award is accompanied by a cash prize of $2,500 and is administered and presented annually by the Gibbes Museum of Art in Charleston, South Carolina.

If you missed signing up for this workshop, be warned and don't let it happen again if you are a fan of figurative work!!!

*Dear Abby,
I want to know...*

“What is she thinking now?” you might say while scratching your head about this Dear Abby title. Really, I am not off on a non-watermedia path.

One of our board members has graciously volunteered his/her service as a (mystery) writer in the CWA newsletter. This mystery writer may or may not divulge his/her real name, perhaps an alias. The new educational article is in the creative state and to be announced soon!

You may wonder ‘How’ does this connect to watermedia. ‘Who’ will want to read it, ‘What’ will it say, ‘Where’ will it take the reader; ‘Why’ is this a new idea and ‘When’ will it start.

You are the who the board thought might enjoy reading information to why questions you may have when you don’t know the answers to; where you can find such and such; or what do I do if? It is meant to be an educational piece for all CWA Newsletter readers who are interested in watermedia art. Dear Abby was tossed around to formulate the idea. I am sure this creative mystery writer will come up with a catchy title and information to watermedia questions beneficial to all of us. Stay tuned for the mystery article.

In addition, perhaps you want to know more about your hours as a CWA volunteer. Below is an explanation of How to receive credit for your volunteer hours, Who tracks the hours and Who signs the volunteer form. If you still have questions about volunteer hours, please refer to the 2014 Policies and Procedures on our website.

It is the member’s responsibility to keep a record of volunteer service hours by having a “Service Hours” slip available at the time of volunteering and have it signed by the chairman of the event being worked. The forms are available on the web site at: www.californiawatercolor.org/forms/CWAServiceHours.pdf. Signed originals (not copies) must be submitted by the CWA Member at the time the hours are to be redeemed.

Service hours are earned by assisting with shows, and any other service deemed acceptable by the Board. Each time a service is performed, a “Service Hours Record” should be completed by the volunteer and signed by the person in charge of the activity, thus providing a record of service.

Wishing you a great summer filled with wonderful paintings.

Thank you, volunteers!

Karen J Powers, CWA President

P.S. Be sure to check out the CWA Workshop section, in the newsletter and on the CWA website, to see if anything is of interest to you. Great watermedia art teachers are always on the schedule.

NEW WORKSHOP IN SEPTEMBER

ANNOUNCING Dick Cole Re-Imagining the Familiar 5 Days, September 15 -18

We are pleased to announce that Dick Cole will be giving a workshop entitled Re-Imagining the Familiar. The focus of this workshop will be to expand your watercolor experience by exploring new techniques and materials, and revisiting familiar ones from a different perspective. Students will be challenged to try to discover the extraordinary within the ordinary. "We need to learn to paint in our own 'backyards' in order to find the worthwhile in the commonplace".

In the workshop, we will study and practice contrast through value studies. We will paint on different surfaces, combining transparent and semi-opaque watercolor. This diverse workshop will include figure studies using old family black and white photos for reference, and marine and landscape themes using identifiable objects to establish scale. All painting sessions will begin with a preliminary value sketch. And above all, Dick says, he will endeavor to make the class a joyful experience.

He has taught painting and illustration at the Academy of Art University, San Jose State University and Foothill College, and is an Artist Member of the California Art Club. A past president of the National Watercolor Society (NWS), Dick Cole (AWS, NWS, CWA, WW) is an illustrator/watercolorist with over 40 years of experience. A graduate of UCLA and The Art Center College of Design, he has worked as a graphic designer, art director, and illustrator in New York, Palo Alto, and San Francisco.

CWA members $440, non-CWA $495.
