February's Guest Artist: CWA's 41st National Exhibition Juror Christopher Schink

Our guest artist for February's General Meeting, Christopher "Topher" Schink, comes to us all the way from Santa Rosa, CA. Although Schink claims to be retired, fortunately for us, he still teaches a few workshops each year, including our first CWA workshop of 2010, "Finding Your Style," February 15-19 at Gallery Concord. Limited space is still available so don't miss this chance to study with Topher, who was described by Alex Powers as the BEST TEACHER EVER!

Schink is also the co-editor of The Palette Magazine with his friend and colleague, Skip Lawrence, who will be here in September 2010 for a workshop and at our General Meeting.

As Schink describes his approach to teaching, he enjoys working with students individually; assessing their work and discussing their direction. His goal is to help each painter find a personally satisfying way to paint – by making paintings more personal and powerful, and helping all painters become the best they can be. And have a lot of fun. After all, as Topher says, why paint, if it's not fun, too?

In his article, "The Discipline of Freedom," Topher mentions that he always has students tell him that their goal is to be looser in their paintings, and they want their watercolors to be free and bold; no one wants to be tight and inhibited. "To be bold and free in painting, you have to know not only how to paint but what to paint. You have to be clear in your concept and confident in your craft. In fact, most of the painters I know whose work is characterized as bold think very little about achieving that effect. They're simply stating what they see, think, or feel in the most direct way... The results are clear and direct. Taking their example, perhaps our emphasis on freedom is somewhat misplaced. Maybe our real goal should be to create that that's clear and direct, even sincere. If we do that, we'll certainly gain the freedom to be bold."

Schink's personal work is focused on figures – whether they are musicians in concert or people in cafes and restaurants. (continued on next page)

He likes to work in series, and has done them on Jazz, Orchestras, Cafes, and Chefs. He is fascinated by the interplay of musicians, and the various characters he finds in cafes. “Just as interesting to me are the people who inhabit a café or restaurant are the people who serve them – the cooks and waiters. As with musicians, their involvement in their craft, their active gestures, or their bored repose offer me a wealth of inspiration.”

Topher began drawing and painting in his childhood, and as such his first works reflected the tastes and interests of a young boy – cowboys, soldiers, and sports figures – but it was their faces that intrigued him, more than their actions, so Rembrandt and Frans Hals were early favorites of his. “My interest in character, the psychology of the subject, continues and is the basis for my Café series of paintings. My intent in these works is not to be illustrative, but rather to suggest a feeling of character – often of a quiet, contemplative or introspective mood.”

Mr. Schink holds a B.A. degree in Fine Arts from Stanford University and has studied privately with Rex Brandt, Edward Betts, and Barse Miller. Schink is an elected member of the National Watercolor Society and an Honorary Member of the Federation of Canadian Artists.

Schink’s paintings have been included in numerous national and international exhibitions including Watercolor USA, The National Watercolor Society Annuals, and Watercolor West. He has exhibited at one- and two-man shows at The Asheville, NC Museum, The Columbia, SC Museum, and The Jackson, MS Municipal Art Gallery. His paintings are in many private and corporate collections.

Mr. Schink has conducted workshops in 45 states in the U.S. as well as classes in Canada, Mexico, Australia, and Europe. He has served as juror for over 40 state, regional, national, and international exhibitions.

With his colleagues Skip Lawrence, Katherine Chang Liu, Alex Powers, Fran Larsen, Topher teaches the Intensive Studies Workshop in Taos New Mexico, each spring.

Topher Schink is the designer and editor of The Palette Magazine, and author of Color and Light for the Watercolor Painter and Mastering Color and Design in Watercolor. Schink has been featured in numerous magazine articles including American Artist Magazine, The Artist’s Magazine, and International Artist, and has contributed instructional articles to these and other publications.

Please join us to welcome Christopher Schink to CWA!

1st Annual CWA Workshop Show

Why and who?

Creations painted during a workshop can be challenging. Students are trying to absorb new information in a foreign space, under a time constraint and expected to produce successful, artistic results. Sadly, if success is achieved, the painting is not eligible for regular Art Shows because of being mastered under the direction of a professional and teaching artist. Many students produce beautiful pieces of art. That is why we created CWA's First Annual Workshop Show at Gallery Concord. We wanted an experienced artist to judge the entries and award the prizes.

Charlotte Huntley, juror and judge for this show, is a highly respected professional with over 400 paintings accepted in National Juried Art Exhibitions in 44 states, Canada and Puerto Rico - many additional elite awards. Huntley is a Signature Member of 30 Art Societies. And has received 55 awards in National Exhibitions since 2000. Huntley is a top-notch artist who came with high expectations for entries in this show.

CWA is proud to present 23 paintings from 17 artists who accomplished artistic success during their participation in a CWA 2009 Workshop-entries from every 2009 workshop.

We will continue this show next year. We hope to see you in a workshop and be sure to keep your workshop paintings for the 2011 Workshop Show. Perhaps it will be our juror, Charlotte Huntley CWA Workshop, June 15-17, 2010.

The CWA Workshop Show can be viewed at Gallery Concord through March 28, 2010.

A book for artists

Ron Schick has written a new book titled "Norman Rockwell: Behind the Camera." It was profiled in the December Smithsonian Magazine by writer Richard B. Woodward. According to Mr. Woodward, Norman Rockwell initially "thought using a pencil was 'cheating' and said he was thoroughly ashamed of tracing details from projected images". Eventually the use of photography and the ability to manipulate the subject matter is what gave him the means to create the images that are so indelibly etched in our history.

The magazine article is well written and fascinating, giving the background story to "The Runaway". Artists will recognize the process of deleting or adding subject material to transform an interesting scene to a powerful statement. The author also interviews the subjects, now 59 and 81 years old. This is great reading, whether you read the magazine article or choose the book.

Helping Artists Become Better Artists – Since 1983. Art in the Mountains has 22 fine art painting workshops including studio and plein-air classes in Bend and Newport, OR, San Francisco and Santa Barbara, CA, and Kauai, HI. Master artists instruct in watercolor, acrylic, oil, pastels, drawing and mixed media. See our 2010 instructors and locations: www.ArtintheMountains.com or Call (503) 930-4572.

outreach news

Leslie Wilson, guest artist, taught an amazing watercolor class on January 15th at Delta View Elementary School in Pittsburg. Marcy McCullah, the teacher of these 3rd and 4th graders (yes, she teaches both of these grades at the same time, in the same classroom) learned about CWA's outreach program at the 2009 Presidio Teachers' Night in October. The children in Mrs. McCullah's class were delighted to experiment with watercolors. They were amazed to learn that watercolors can blend and that they can be mixed to produce another color. They mixed such beautiful colors, many of which, we're sure, have never been mixed before. Mrs. McCullah loved the watercolor class and asked CWA to come back. As always, CWA provided the brushes, paper and paints (all artist quality) and Leslie and the children provided the enthusiasm.
