April ZOOM Demo Artist Fealing Lin NWS, TWSA, WW, SDWS, MWS

There will be a ZOOM General Meeting and Painting Demonstration by Fealing Lin for CWA members and friends to participate, on Wednesday, April 21, 2021, from 7:00–9:00 pm. The ZOOM Meeting ID will be emailed to CWA members approximately two weeks prior to the demo.

Untitled and Here We Are by Fealing Lin

Award-winning watercolorist, Fealing Lin of San Marino, California, was born in Taiwan and began her journey into artistic expression as a protégé of renowned professor Ching-Jung Chen in Taiwan, subsequently pursuing her career in the United States with watercolorist and senior art historian professor Verna Wells.

With a fluidity of colors, Ms. Lin combines impressionistic strokes and semi-abstract techniques to elicit life and movement in her portrait and landscape watercolors. Her paintings adorn the paper with both harmony and emotion.

Although briefly diverted from her passion by a family tradition of medicine and dentistry, Fealing ultimately abandoned her tray of instruments and high-speed drills in favor of her pallet and brushes. Now she is a teacher, demonstrator, judge, and active exhibitor.

Said Professor William Blackshaw, President of the Royal Watercolor Society in England, "Fealing Lin paints poems that vibrate with light and color... long may she continue to delight the eye and move the spirit"

"My passion for watercolor," says Ms. Lin, "comes from the opportunity it gives me to be totally spontaneous in the pursuit of traditional watercolor transparency which is the "glow"

California Watercolor Association

Each month in 2021, a different member of the CWA Board of Directors will have the opportunity to write an art-related article for our members.

Art as Therapy

While man has used art to express himself for thousands of years, the benefit of art as therapy has really not come into its own until the early 1940's. It began with therapists recognizing the role that art played in their own physical and mental well-being. Specifically, British artist, author, and art therapist, Adrian Hill, realized the therapeutic value of art for the sick while being treated for tuberculosis in 1938. Having seen art's role in his own recovery, he began working with other patients in the sanatorium, documenting his discoveries in his groundbreaking book Art Versus Illness.

Many of us, as artists, have experienced the benefits of art in our own lives, whether we realize it or not. Art offers the opportunity to step out of the logical left-side of the brain and into the more representational and emotional right-side of the brain — the side that is more interested in shapes than meaning. It is here, in the right side, that our core memories are seated, which better enables licensed art therapists to access and provide tools to resolve the traumatic memories of some of their clients. Even the Swiss psychiatrist, Carl Jung, recognized the value of art, as he utilized the drawing of mandalas as an exercise to explore and research his own subconscious mind and to access memories he had long forgotten.

During the past year, in this season of isolation and civic turmoil, I have heard many artists state that they haven't been able to paint due to depression or anxiety over circumstances that are beyond their control. "I just don't have the desire to paint," they say, or, "I haven't painted in months." Unbeknownst to these reluctant artists, ceasing to paint is actually eliminating one very valuable tool in staving off mental instability.

Creative expression can foster well-being and healing by helping one to develop self-awareness, explore emotions, and access tools for dealing with stress, depression, and anxiety. As we create art mindfully, our brain releases the hormone dopamine, the 'happy' hormone which activates the brain's reward pathways giving a sense of well-being. This can offset both depression and anxiety. While it is recommended to work with a licensed therapist, one doesn't necessarily have to see a professional to experience some of the mental health benefits of creating art.

I would like to submit to you, that now, more than ever, we need to be leaning into our art, but not to just better our technique or to meet the qualifications of the current prospectus. In order to truly benefit from our time spent creating, we must endeavor to create our work more mindfully, involving our five senses in the process of painting. Be aware of the pressure of your feet on floor or your back against the chair. Listen as your brush glides across the paper or clinks against the water glass. Watch the water as it interacts with the paint and colors melt together. Immerse yourself in the moment, being in the fully present as you paint, and in so doing, in these times of duress, glean the benefits of art as therapy.

Memory Project: Portraits by Clayton Valley Charter High School Students Are Complete!

Portrait of Ako

Portrait of Terah

This school year CWA Community Outreach sponsored five students from Clayton Valley Charter High School in the Memory Project. The Memory Project connects U.S. students to disadvantaged students from third world countries through portraiture. The Project provides the U.S. students with photographs of students from a number of different countries. From these photos they create portraits on paper using an art medium of their choice. The Clayton Valley students chose to work on portraits of students from Cameroons. Cameroons is a coastal country lying at the junction of western and central Africa.

The Community Outreach committee is very pleased with these finished portraits. We are certain that the Cameroon students will be thrilled to see themselves as envisioned by the Clayton Valley students. Sometime later this year the portraits will be presented to the Cameroon students and photos or a video will be sent back to the Clayton Valley High School students so that they can enjoy seeing how their artwork was received.

Sheila Cain

Here is what Evan Hughes, Clayton Valley's art teacher, has to say about the Memory Project.

What are your reflections on the project now that it's done?

"I've known about this project in the past, so I was excited to get the opportunity offered to us by a sponsor. We recently sent the portraits out, so we haven't seen any evidence of their reception, but I know we're all grateful to be given the opportunity to participate in a project that connects people across the world through drawing and painting."

What was the easiest and most difficult part working with your students on this project?

"This is a great group of students, that I've known and worked with for more than a year...so there weren't really any significant difficulties."

Would you recommend this project to other high school art teachers? Why?

"Absolutely. The overwhelming majority of work and projects students do is...school work. Any opportunity to get involved with projects that take student's work, and impact out of academia and into 'real-world' experience is worth their time."

The Community Outreach committee is rightfully pleased with the success so far of the Memory Project at Clayton Valley Charter High School. We're eager to connect with other high schools and sponsor more students.

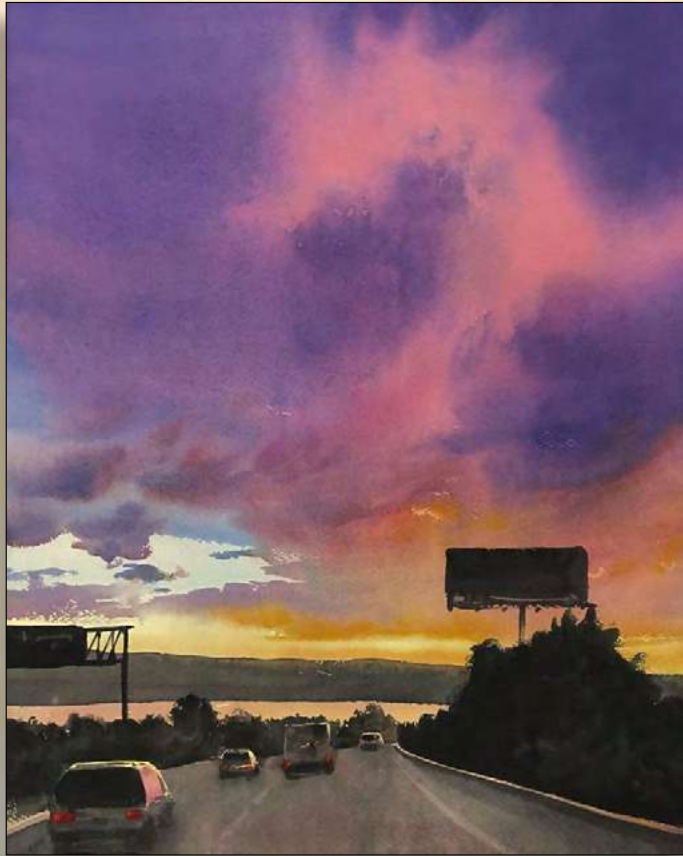

Help connect U.S. students with students from other less advantaged countries and move U.S. high school student's artwork out into the world. Share your connections to high school art teachers or students.

CALIFORNIA WATERCOLOR ASSOCIATION 2021 WATERCOLOR ONLINE WORKSHOP SERIES

CWA strives to provide our students with some of the best workshops with the top professional artists of our time. Please join in the fun. We look forward to meeting you.

Stephen Berry, CWA Composition and Design 3-Day ZOOM Online Workshop April 16–18, 2021

Advanced Beginner to Advanced
CWA Members $225 Non-Members $285

Stephen likes the challenge of control and the freedom that comes from letting go and teaming up with an elemental process. Little discoveries happen along the way, and you must decide how you'll respond.

In this workshop, as we practice our painting skills, we'll be focusing on an often challenging subject — Composition. The goal for our time together will be to learn to build paintings with a strong focal point, that guide the eye of the viewer and create interest through contrast. We'll start by exploring and playing with abstract black and white shapes, shift into notans and single color paintings, and move all the way into the usage of a limited color palette. On the final day, you will take what you have learned and apply it as you choose to your own subject matter. Online instruction will feature topical lectures (which will be available for later re-viewing), skills based activities, rough sketching, and complete paintings

David Savellano, MCWA Vacation Journaling — Ink and Watercolor 2-Day ZOOM Online Workshop | July 17–18, 2021

Advanced Beginner to Advanced
CWA Members $150 Non-Members $210

David is an artist who works primarily in plein air (outdoors), creating watercolor paintings that capture random moments — on the street, in nature, and wherever else his portable easel or sketchbook takes him.

Michael Holter, NWS, OPS, SWS, SWA Watercolor Impressionism: Faces and Places 3-Day ZOOM Online Workshop | October 15–16, 2021

Advanced Beginner to Advanced
CWA Members $225 Non-Members $285

Michael's workshop will include insightful discussion of important aspects of figurative work such as composition and capturing a mood. You will spend time on exercises designed to heighten your techniques. There will be real-time demonstrations as well as high-speed video demos of Michael working in his studio.

Artist website at michaelholter.com

Workshops are held online during the pandemic — we will resume our workshop slate at California State University East Bay Concord Campus in the Art Lab at 4700 Ygnacio Valley Road, Concord, CA 94521, when it is safe.

from the white paper that emerges through the paint once a fusion occurs from the application of wet onto wet.

Fealing was an annual guest instructor at Yosemite National Park for more than ten years, an instructor at Brand Art Studios at Brand Library in Glendale, and at San Gabriel Recreation Center in San Gabriel. She was featured at Descanso Gardens Gallery for ten consecutive years. She has taught watercolor workshops throughout California and the United States. Fealing has been enthusiastically embraced by the general public and private collectors alike.

Fealing is a signature member of the National Watercolor Society, Transparent Watercolor Society of America, Watercolor West, San Diego Watercolor Society, and the Missouri Watercolor Society. Her work has been juried in many national exhibitions including NWS, WW, TWSA (Transparent Watercolor Society of America), Brand National, Audubon Artist, San Diego Watercolor International, and many others. She has won numerous awards among these shows.

Fealing's works also appear in many magazines and books, including Watercolor Magic, Artist Sketch Magazine, International Artist Magazine, Best Watercolor, and Splash (9, 10, 11, 12 and 14). She is one of the fifteen artists who have contributed to the new book Watercolor Secrets by North Light Books (2009). Her self-portrait is featured on the cover.

CWA Online Workshops

Real or Virtual: The Workshop Debate

Have you hesitated from attending a virtual workshop? I sure did.

I didn't think I had the right equipment.

I couldn't imagine learning anything presented on a small screen.

I thought there would be very little connection between the instructor and the other students.

I was wrong.

Charles Henry Rouse, an artist I admire, was coming to town this spring, but virtually only. The odds of him returning any time soon were about a million to one. So what to do? I bit the bullet and signed up. I was very surprised by the reduced price of a virtual workshop, already a win!

I only owned a desktop computer and it wasn't located anywhere near my paint paraphernalia. After I expressed this frustration, Joe Tringali suggested I buy an iPad. "It would bring me great joy!" were his exact words. I couldn't pass on any amount of joy, so I headed to Best Buy. They sold me one with plenty of a la carte accessories in a matter of minutes. Then all I had to do was charge it up and even I could manage that.

Joyful already.

Armed with all of Joe's emails filled with schedules, times, how-tos, logins, and passcodes, I sat down at my painting desk on DAY ONE and managed to log on early! By not packing up and schlepping boards, papers, paints, water jugs, and lunch, nor fighting traffic, I was definitely feeling the joy!

Charles is a very friendly guy and had no trouble filling the airwaves with work samples, lessons, stories, histories, and I didn't miss a minute, because I could carry Charles with me everywhere. He went upstairs while I folded laundry. He went outside to check the mail with me. He unloaded the dishwasher with me. The idea of attending a workshop in your own home had benefits I was just beginning to realize!

He mailed the project ahead we would be painting so that everyone in the class would be working on the same drawing. I could very easily watch Charles point and highlight on my iPad screen. When the class figured out how to navigate the mute button, we could ask questions and even speak to one another. It was just like being in the same room. After we finished a project, we could share our work virtually and get a critique by the artist. Joe posted a collage every evening of the classwork.

I'll also add that it was a plus not to consider hair, makeup, and even pants in my schedule! Not a minute wasted on grooming. Another plus.

Lastly, I want to say that Joe Tringali and Michelle George, who facilitated the workshop, did a fantastic job. They kept the workshop moving and knew how to electronically guide the attendees. They were instrumental in making this workshop great.

If you're thinking about a virtual workshop, DO IT!

I was very doubtful in the beginning but, in the end, it was one of the best workshops I've attended.

The only loss? We couldn't go out to lunch together!

Oh...and the credit card bill that will show up for that joyful iPad.
