John (Jack) Muir Laws is a principal leader and innovator of the worldwide nature journaling movement. Jack is a scientist, educator, and author, who helps people forge a deeper and more personal connection with nature through keeping illustrated nature journals and understanding science. His work intersects science, art, and mindfulness. Trained as a wildlife biologist and an associate of the California Academy of Sciences, he observes the world with rigorous attention. He looks for mysteries, plays with ideas, and seeks connections in all he sees. Attention, observation, curiosity, and creative thinking are not gifts, but skills that grow with training and deliberate practice. As an educator and author, Jack teaches techniques and supports routines that develop these skills to make them a part of everyday life.

He was given the 2020 Bay Nature Local Hero award for his work in environmental education. In 2009, he received the Terwilliger Environmental Award for outstanding service in Environmental Education. He is a 2010 TogetherGreen Conservation Leadership Fellow with the National Audubon Society. He was the 2011 artist for International Migratory Bird Day. He has written and illustrated books about art and natural history including The Laws Guide to Nature Drawing and Journaling (2016), The Laws Guide to Drawing Birds (2012), Sierra Birds: a Hiker's Guide (2004), The Laws Guide to the Sierra Nevada (2007), and The Laws Pocket Guide Set to the San Francisco Bay Area (2009). He is a regular contributor to Bay Nature magazine with his "Naturalists Notebook" column. He is the primary author and editor of the curriculum: Opening the World through Nature

The Drawing Board

California Watercolor Association

Each month in 2021, a different member of the CWA Board of Directors will have the opportunity to write an art-related article for our members.

What I Have Learned from Workshops

I was a late starter in the watercolor world but not a late starter in watching art lessons. My first lesson, long before I ever picked up a brush, was as a kid watching The Joy of Painting with Bob Ross. I learned about magic white, beating brushes, and “it’s your world, let’s put a little mountain over there.” I was hooked and watched Bob for the next 40 years but still had not picked up a brush. Although Bob did not inspire me to paint, he did inspire me to take photographs. I wanted to capture the landscapes, waterscapes, and ocean waves that he was creating on canvas. What did I learn from Bob? Composition. His ability to create depth, a sense of light and shadow, and a focal point were lessons that lead directly into photography. I also learned...

“We don't make mistakes; we just have happy accidents.”

— Bob Ross

Wow, who knew that by watching classes about painting you could learn things about life.

It wasn't until about ten years ago when I realized that my photos were beginning to look like paintings that I decided to give it a try. In this digital age, it's easy to go back to school and learn anything at the University of YouTube! I became a voracious consumer of demos, tutorials, step-by-steps on anything that had to do with painting. I took my first CWA workshop with Michael Reardon and was hooked even more. This led me to become first, the Workshop Registrar and now, Director of Workshops. For the last five years, I have been able to take every workshop offered by CWA. What a wonderful opportunity! So, what have I learned? Am I a better painter? Have I become a Turner, Rembrandt, Picasso...? No. Although I have learned all the “Big Picture” (pun intended) stuff, — perspective, color theory, brush control, values, etc. — and my paintings do look better than when I started ten years ago, it seems that the most valuable things learned in workshops are little picture things.

Michael Reardon who is a wonderful instructor taught me that five little specs of white (you could cover them with a quarter) left on a 10 x 6 canvas would become sheep in a pasture and be the whole focal point of the painting.

Michael Reardon

Birgit O'Connor

John Muir Laws, our October Demo Artist, who teaches all things about journaling nature taught me about sketching, something I had avoided doing for years. His advice, make a bunch of light lines and reinforce the ones you like. Boom I could sketch!

From Birgit O'Connor who is the master of teaching all things floral and abstraction, we covered blending, lost and found edges, composition, brush control. My little takeaways from that workshop were to commit to bold strokes, don't worry about mistakes “it's only paper,” and I also learned about the wonder of Mr. Clean Magic Eraser! None of these little lessons were in the course description.

The more workshops that I have taken, the more “little lessons” I have accumulated. Even though the instructors all are wonderful at teaching the big lessons it is the little things that I continue to hoard and treasure.

More Little Lessons

Jeannie McGuire — Every painting tells a story; design and composition come from the story.

Don Andrews — I learned that I cannot paint nudes, but I appreciate those who can.

Johannes Vloothuis — In a landscape painting, change your hue and value every two inches.

Stephen Berry — Saturate the back of your paper, not the front.

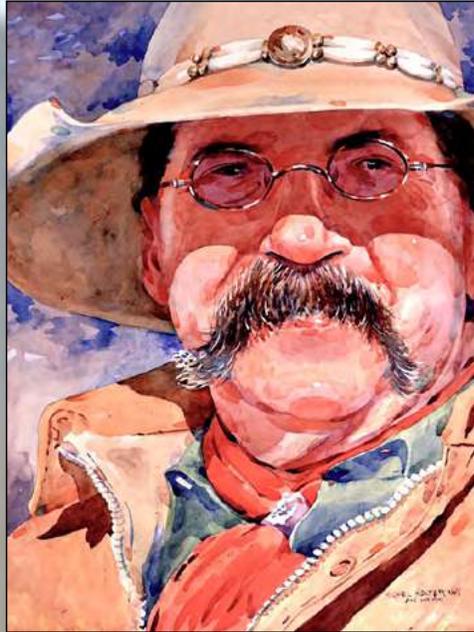

Nancy Collins — Use sandpaper on a plastic palette to prevent water from forming puddles.

Ted Nuttal — Doing a flat wash is like fighting a civil war.

Lian Zhen — Three colors are all you need.

Jullie Pollard — If you want to paint water in a creek spend some time at a creek.

Michael Holter, NWS, OPS, SWS, SWA Watercolor Impressionism: Faces and Places

3-Day ZOOM Online Workshop | October 15–16, 2021

Advanced Beginner to Advanced

CWA Members $225 Non-Members $285

Many artists have an unnatural aversion to painting people, yet we know there is an attraction to the human form when viewing a painting. Not only does including people in artwork add interest and connection to the viewer, it takes the same skills as painting a landscape or still life. The method Michael demonstrates and instructs you in will take you through the necessary steps to achieve your goals and give you tools to create a well-structured representation while still allowing for the expressive use of color and brushstroke.

Michael's workshop will include insightful discussion of important aspects of figurative work such as composition and capturing a mood. You will spend time on exercises designed to heighten your techniques. There will be real-time demonstrations as well as high-speed video demos of Michael working in his studio. Students of all levels and interests will enjoy Michael's personal and up-front style of teaching as well as his inspirational approach to his work. Students will leave prepared and challenged to move on to a new level of confidence in painting portraits in watercolor.

Now and for 2022

"Volunteering is the ultimate exercise in democracy. You vote in elections once a year, but when you volunteer, you vote every day about the kind of community you want to live in." — Author Unknown

The Drawing Board

Thomas Schaller — Where is the art in what you see?

David Savellano — All figures' heads should be on the horizon line. (I think this is a life lesson also.)

Soon Warren — It's only paper!

Michael Holter — It's OK to use white paint.

Charles Rouse — For reference material take catchall photos (wide-angle). Then crop to find your composition.

Steve Rogers — Paint reflected light warm.

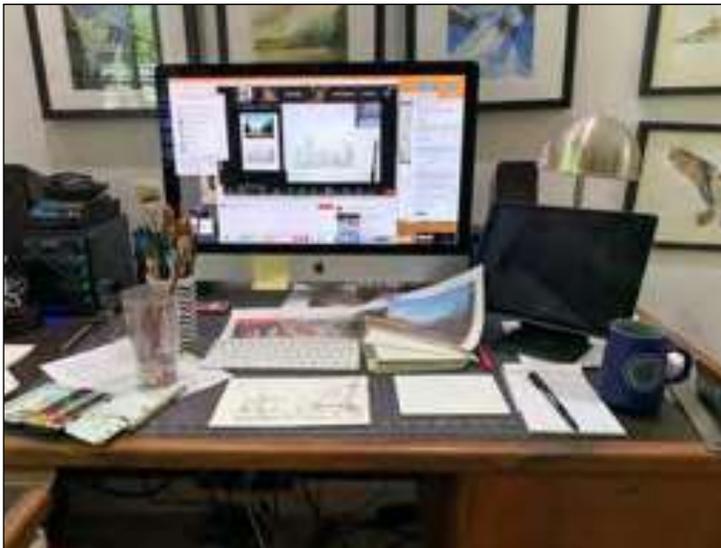

Ian Stewart — Lost edges provide mystery. Overthinking detail kills a painting.

Thomas Schaller

David Savellano

Someone recently asked me if virtual workshops have diminished the experience of learning. My answer is no because we can re-watch the recordings. I have the time to watch again and again often picking up on the little nuggets that I missed the first time through. Because I can watch the recordings many times I don't always paint along. I just enjoy what the artist is saying and enjoy their painting process.

So, what's the bottom line. What have I learned? Workshops are wonderful! CWA has some of the greatest watercolorists available for you to learn from no matter your skill level. Visit our website and sign up for one. Plan to learn the big things but listen for the little things that will make your art better and enrich your life. Oh, and have fun!
