

CWA paints the Academy of Science, Inside and Out

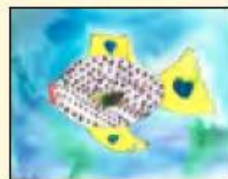

Standing: Ruth Miller, Chief Organizer; Seated: Wendy Oliver, Phyllis Brady

Ruth Miller with Abby in the Family Painting Station, Yvonne Lee in background.

Samantha McNally and Pablo Villicana-Lara

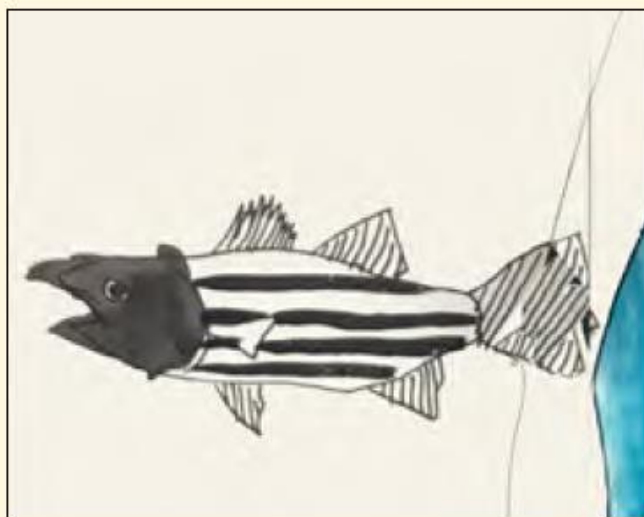

A sample of children's art from the Family Paint Station.

Saturday, July 16, more than a dozen CWA painters were positioned throughout the Academy of Science in Golden Gate Park, in a massive Outreach organized and shepherded through by Ruth Miller. Thank you Ruth.

CWA artists were Outreaching by painting at tables from photos in the lobby. Others set up easels in the rainforest, the Africa section, even on the roof where they plein air painted and answered questions about CWA and water media.

The "hands on" portion of this Outreach event, again organized by Ruth Miller, was the drawing and painting of a fish at the Family Paint Station. Schools of fish, literally 150 paintings, were created by toddlers, children, youths and their families at the Academy of Science. Nemo was discussed, as well as the all black and white sea bass by one young fish aficionado.

An art show in the Piazza concluded the day's event with a showing of all the artwork painted by CWA artists (see photos on page 13).

Black and white sea bass drawn and painted by a young fish aficionado.